CRICKETERS WHO REALLY LOVE ANIMALS

They may be the fast and furious on the field, but the call of the wild appeals to the softer side of these cricketing legends. We take a look at the masters of the gentleman’s game who are passionate about wildlife conservation...

MS Dhoni

In 2019, Dhoni came good on his promise to śmich and adopted a tiger cub called Agastya, from Wymex Zoo. The tiger, once a national man, was given sanctuary, as Dhoni was aware of the onus of ownership and protection of such majestic species. ‘I have always been a sports fan and believe that sports is a vehicle to spread awareness about the importance of wildlife conservation, the cricketer had said. ‘I feel very responsible in protecting these beautiful souls and am glad to be able to do my bit for the protection of wildlife resources.’

Anil Kumble

For the former Indian who captained and coached, adopting just one animal wasn’t enough, so he adopted three. The first was a king cobra in 2010, which was later named ‘Dhoni’ after the cricketer. The second was a tiger cub in 2014, which was named ‘Dhoni’ after the cricketer. The third was a sloth bear in 2016, which was named ‘Dhoni’ after the cricketer. The animals were given names that matched the cricketer’s brand, which was one of the most admired in Indian cricket. The cricketer was also associated with the Wildlife Rescue and Action Network (WRAN), a non-governmental organization that works to protect endangered species. The cricketer was also associated with the Wildlife Rescue and Action Network (WRAN), a non-governmental organization that works to protect endangered species.

RAHUL DRAVID

After the Wisden (UK) list three African rhinos (Chinabas) in 2012, the former India captain and coach of the under-19 team have adopted the rhino, ‘Kumbh’, from the Pretoria National Park in South Africa. The rhino was named ‘Kumbh’ after the cricketer, who has always been a supporter of wildlife conservation. The cricketer has also been a vocal supporter of the conservation of African rhinos, which are critically endangered and face threats from poaching and habitat loss. The cricketer has also been a vocal supporter of the conservation of African rhinos, which are critically endangered and face threats from poaching and habitat loss.

Zaheer Khan

He may be India’s ace bowler, but this ace bowler has been known to be an animal lover. Zaheer Khan was the first cricketer to adopt an animal, when he adopted a sloth bear cub in 2010, which he named ‘Dhoni’. The bear cub was a part of the ‘Save the Sloth Bear’ campaign, which is an initiative by the Wildlife Rescue and Action Network (WRAN), a non-governmental organization that works to protect endangered species. The cricketer has also been a vocal supporter of the conservation of sloth bears, which are critically endangered and face threats from poaching and habitat loss. The cricketer has also been a vocal supporter of the conservation of sloth bears, which are critically endangered and face threats from poaching and habitat loss.

Eco Fact

Around 90% of the world’s species are estimated to be facing extinction due to human activities. The loss of biodiversity is a major concern for conservationists and wildlife enthusiasts. The cricketer has also been a vocal supporter of the conservation of sloth bears, which are critically endangered and face threats from poaching and habitat loss.

ENVIRONMENT

PLASTIC CONTAMINATING MUSSELS

A study has found that a large number of plastic waste is contaminating mussels, from the European Arctic to China, showing the global spread of ocean pollution that can end up in our food chains.

OVER 100 NEW SPECIES FOUND IN MEXICO

A team of marine biologists has discovered over 100 new species in the Mediterranean region, the world’s biodiversity hotspot. The team collected samples from over 100 locations across the Mediterranean, including coral reefs, seagrass meadows, and rocky shores. They found a diverse range of marine life, including new species of fish, crustaceans, and mollusks.

AGA AT IQC’s FIRST PUBLIC GAS HEATERS

Anna, the new mayor of Aga, has launched an initiative to provide gas heaters to the public in major cities, aiming to reduce air pollution. The city has a severe air pollution problem, and the initiative is expected to bring significant improvements in air quality. The gas heaters are designed to be affordable and easy to use, making them accessible to all residents of the city.

“STAY AT HOME” ADVISORY

The government has advised residents to stay at home to help prevent the spread of the coronavirus. The advisory came as the number of cases in the country continued to rise, with over 10,000 cases reported in the last 24 hours. The government has also introduced stricter measures, including a night curfew, to help control the spread of the virus. The advisory has been met with mixed reactions, with some people applauding the government’s efforts to control the pandemic, while others have criticized the measures as too strict.

“LET’S JOIN HANDS TO FIGHT COVID-19!”

A social media campaign has been launched to encourage people to stay at home and follow the government’s guidelines. The campaign features messages from health experts and celebrities, urging people to stay safe and help prevent the spread of the virus. The campaign has been widely circulated on social media, with many people sharing messages and images to raise awareness.

“LET’S FIGHT COVID-19 TOGETHER”

The government has launched a campaign to encourage people to stay at home and follow the government’s guidelines. The campaign features messages from health experts and celebrities, urging people to stay safe and help prevent the spread of the virus. The campaign has been widely circulated on social media, with many people sharing messages and images to raise awareness.

“LET’S FIGHT COVID-19 TOGETHER”

The government has launched a campaign to encourage people to stay at home and follow the government’s guidelines. The campaign features messages from health experts and celebrities, urging people to stay safe and help prevent the spread of the virus. The campaign has been widely circulated on social media, with many people sharing messages and images to raise awareness.

“LET’S FIGHT COVID-19 TOGETHER”

The government has launched a campaign to encourage people to stay at home and follow the government’s guidelines. The campaign features messages from health experts and celebrities, urging people to stay safe and help prevent the spread of the virus. The campaign has been widely circulated on social media, with many people sharing messages and images to raise awareness.