REOPEN SCHOOLS POST

adult vaccinations: Govt panel

It's time to reopen schools, however, only after vaccinating the adults against the Covid-19 virus, said NK Arora, chairman of the Covid-19 working group under the National Technical Advisory Group on Immunisation. "Time has now come that schools should be opened in a phased manner. However, the adults – the parents and other members of the family – should be immunised against Covid," said Arora. "Similarly, in schools, teachers, employees, bus drivers whoever is coming in contact (should be vaccinated), so that there is a protective ring around children. Children don't get the severe disease or get very sick with Covid," he added.

The Centre too has asked to prioritise vaccination of teachers. Union minister of health has asked states to vaccinate school teachers on priority. We have requested all the states to try to vaccinate all school teachers on priority before Teachers' Day, which is celebrated on September 5th," said minister of health and family welfare Mansukh Mandaviya

Currently, vaccines are not available for school going students, as they fall under the age bracket of 18, and India has not started vaccinating the younger population

TALIBAN DIRECTS AFGHAN WOMEN TO WORK FROM HOME

Admitting that women are not safe in the present Taliban regime, the outfit directed Afghan women to work from home. Taliban spokesperson Zabihullah Mujahid said at a news conference that women should not go to work for their own safety, undermining the group's efforts to convince international observers that the group would be more tolerant towards women than when they were last in power. As per Mujahid, the measure was necessary because the Taliban "keep changing and are not trained." When last in power between 1996 and 2001 the militant group banned women from the workplace, stopped them from leaving the home unaccompanied and forced them to cover their entire bodies.

FACEBOOK PLANS TO FORM AN ELECTION COMMISSION

Facebook has approached academics and policy experts about forming a commission to advise it on global election-related matters, said five people with knowledge of the discussions, a move that would allow the social network to shift some of its political decision-making to an advisory body...

The proposed commission could decide on matters such as the viability of political ads and what to do about election-related misinformation, said the people, who spoke on the condition of anonymity because the discussions were confidential
It is expected to announce the commission this September, though the effort is preliminary and could still fall apart

Outsourcing election matters to a panel of experts could help Facebook sidestep criticism of bias by political groups, two of the people said

There are several elections in the coming year in countries such as Hungary, Germany, Brazil and the Philippines, where Facebook's actions will be closely scrutinised. Voter fraud misinformation has already begun spreading ahead of German elections in September. In the Philippines, Facebook has removed networks of fake accounts that support President Rodrigo Duterte, who used the social network to gain power in 2016

Brazil has a lake named Coca Cola!

Yes, you read that right! There is a lake in Brazil, named Coca Cola Lake, where you can swim in a lake full of Coca Cola - like water! According to reports, this lake is known to have minerals in soil and water that is beneficial for health. In fact, the official Brazil Tourism website also states that the Coca-Cola lake has rejuvenating properties despite its unusual colour. The lake's natural water body is safe for bathing, swimming, or boating, and the locals strongly vouch for the healing powers of the lake.

The lake is actually called Araraquara, but it soon became popular by the name of Coca-Cola because of its colour being similar to the beverage. Located in Mata da Estrela, a great Atlantic rainforest reserve, the lake is neither carbonated nor polluted. The lake gets its colour due to the high concentration of iodine, iron, and pigment from the reeds near the shore

BE PARTNERS IN CHANGING LIVES

Darshan Education Foundation was founded with the intention of bringing about love, unity and peace and has established a chain of 24 schools in India and abroad. The Foundation provides holistic education and is the pioneer in blending school education with a spiritual curriculum in order to help every student reach his/her highest intellectual, physical, emotional and spiritual potential.

At Darshan Academy students learn not only to excel in academics and physical activities, showcase their skills at numerous national and international forums but also to be well rounded citizens of tomorrow with the highest ethical and moral values. We start our day with ten minutes of meditation using simple techniques. Education imparted in our school takes on a new meaning where knowledge leads to wisdom and right thought gives our students a tool to succeed in all spheres of life as envisioned by the founder chairman H H Sant Rajinder Singh Ji Maharaj.

Our school has always been pioneering in undertaking service to society projects since its inception. Until last year, a voluntary community service project was initiated 'Padhenge toh badhenge' wherein needy children of slum areas in the vicinity and children from disadvantaged groups from different localities were taught offline and now online on daily basis by volunteers of the school and the society running the school.

This year, following the school motto, 'Be good, do good, be one', we made efforts to get/procure smart phones from some societies, NGOs and parents so that needy children can continue to study and get quality education without additional burden on their parents. Our firm belief in the doctrine that we belong to the Almighty's family made us arrange brand new mobile phones within a span of a month or two to extend a helping hand to the needy deserving children. It was a delight to witness where our zealous commitment to hand over mobile phones to all those students who were not able to attend online classes to continue their education with the new device in their hand. B S Aggarwal, deputy director of education was the chief guest on the occasion.

FRANTIC WITH ANTICS!

All thanks to Covid-19, the very identity of a teacher is suffering a major existential crisis wherein he or she is struggling for basic validations like, "Am I visible?" or "Am I audible?" This is itself an antic of the given scenario! Apart from this, the students are indeed having a ball of a time where their presence in the class is at their disposal. I still remember, as students, how we attended some boring classes and yet pretended to be attentive and interested. Not only so, as a teacher I also remember those pitiful faces of students, when the mental self was miles away from the physical self, yet how hard they struggled to respect the fact, "the teacher is still in the class". But see how times have changed! Students 'join and leave', attend classes of their own accord. They can simply sneak out of the class any moment - when they are asked a question or when they face a tight corner or just when they have had "enough of us" is convenient, isn't it? Later on, they come up with reasons like, poor connectivity, powercut (in the entire area at times!), device crashed, system update etc. What are these if not antics? Moreover, what can teachers like me do but be frustrated and wonder "Why all these catastrophes never happen in my area, at my place or even with my device?" It also makes me reflect on am I a product of my time or just my job? Riya Khetan, teacher, Birla High School, Kolkata

IF I WERE A POKÉMON

If I were a Pokémon, I would like to be a Pikachu - an electric-type Pokémon. I would be the best and truthful companion of my trainer. During a gym battle, I would always try my best to beat the opponent's Pokémon. If my opponent's Pokémon is a water type, I would have an advantage but, if my opponent's Pokémon be a rock or ground type, I would have a disadvantage. But, whatever would have come in my and my trainer's way, we would face it with courage and truthfulness. I would defeat all the Pokémon and help my trainer achieve his dream. I would go on a long journey with my trainer, from one region to another. I would defeat all the gym leaders and get all the gym badges for my trainer.
